We Recycle

We recycle to save our environment

The efficient re-use of materials conserves energy and saves our environment. Recycling is the way of the future. We welcome you to take part in our green solution. All metals remaining after cremation are disposed of in the most suitable manner to reduce the impact on our environment. This will include the sensitive recycling of orthopaedic implants and metal residues in compliance with existing laws. Periodically, we collect all recovered metals and take them to a central point for recycling. We provide the logistics to collect and transport all metal remains and orthopaedic implants free of charge.

We Reassure

We provide transparency and ease, so you can focus on what you do best

We understand that your first priority is creating an oasis of calm for your clients, a place where they can say farewell to a loved one. Your business depends on preserving your good reputation and a responsive relationship with your clients as a respected crematorium.

We have the necessary certification and documentation to reassure that all orthopaedic implants and metal remains following cremation are recycled in the most appropriate manner complying with existing local legislation. We allow you to focus on what you do best, while we take care of the recycling process.

We Care

We support charity together

We provide you with a unique opportunity to choose a charity to donate the proceeds derived from the recycling scheme. The proceeds can also be distributed amongst respected charities and institutes we made contact with over the years.

We are OrthoMetals

We are the global market leader and a family owned company

Jan Gabriëls, an active orthopaedic surgeon, and Ruud Verberne, a logistic manager and recycling expert, founded OrthoMetals in 1997. Our mission is to provide a legitimate and environment-friendly method to process and recycle the metal remains. Jan Gabriëls sons followed in his footsteps soon after receiving their MBA degrees. Nowadays OrthoMetals is the global leader in orthopaedic implant recycling. A reliable, certified partner with great experience in more than 15 countries worldwide.
